

SCHOOL CHILDREN GIVE PROGRAMMES

Render Exercises in City's Public Schools Appropriate to Holiday Season.

Christmas programmes of interest and excellence were rendered in the various public schools of the city Wednesday, including the high school, where the exercises were under the direction of Red and Black, the school paper. The programme at the high school follows: Introduction, Charles Howard; selection, High school orchestra; "Alumni," William McCrea; selection, High school orchestra; "Red and Black," Earl Smith; "H. S. A. G.," Marie Goby; "Athletics," Will Yates; recitation, Vera Taft; "Alumnae," Busiah World; high school song, students.

Probably the greatest enjoyment was in the kindergarten and primary departments. The board of education had presented each of these departments with a handsome Christmas tree, and in addition to dressing the trees themselves, the little folks had made a large number of things, which were presented to their parents, who attended the exercises in large numbers.

In the higher grades the pupils rendered programmes consisting of songs, recitations, declamations and the like of a character in keeping with the occasion.

MANUFACTURERS NOT DOING RIGHT THING

Wool Growers Get Only Few Cents for Wool in $75 Suit of Clothes.

A letter requesting William Whitman, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, to address the National Woolgrowers' association convention in Portland, Or., next month has been sent to Whitman by George S. Walker, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' association, according to a letter received Wednesday by C. B. Stewart, secretary at the Utah Woolgrowers' association.

The letter to Whitman sets forth the contentions of the woolgrowers that the manufacturers are not doing the right thing. It is shown that the growers of wool get but 75 cents out of the wool in a suit of clothes costing $75. The manufacturers are accused in the letter of manipulating the market to such a degree that the growers of wool have not made a cent on the average for several years. The letter makes other accusations against the manufacturers which apparently make it necessary for Secretary Whitman to reply in person or by communication.

Whitman, it is said, had originally planned to speak at the Portland convention, but when announcement was made that Edward Moir, champion of the woolgrowers' cause and author of many magazine articles and speeches condemning the manufacturers and Whitman, Whitman decided he would not speak and informed Secretary Walker to that effect.

It is now the purpose of Walker, it is said, to force Whitman into expressing his views to the growers, either in person or by communication.

The Best Gift

One central idea of friendly well wishing underlies all Christmas presents given in the right spirit. You remember your friends, big and little, and the token of remembrance is simply the visible evidence of esteem and affection.

This leads to the suggestion: Why not give a present that will work permanently for the benefit of the friend? For instance, open an account with our savings department for him. One dollar will suffice and, if you wish, we shall send the pass book so as to reach the recipient on the day before Christmas.
